

Date: November, 2007
Author: Paul Fulcher (Publisher)
Source: Canadian Woodworking eNewsletter
Link: <http://www.canadianwoodworking.com/Newsletters/Nov2007/>

I spent a couple of days roaming around the WMS (Woodworking Machinery and Supply Expo) with my editor last month, and saw a whole bunch of stuff that we thought you might be interested in.

Hingemark Jig

Professional contractors and do-it-yourselfers can now install concealed European cabinet hinges in record time, thanks to the release of the new Canadian made Hingemark jig.

“Hingemark will ensure a perfect hinge alignment every time,” explains inventor Mark Coleiro.

“Just hold the jig against the edge of a cabinet or door, tap the spring-loaded pins with a hammer, and then attach the hinge with confidence. The days of time-consuming measurements are over!”

Field tests have shown that Hingemark can help users install cabinet hinges in one-third of the time when compared to traditional installation methods.